A] Pre-watching activities

Teamwork

Divide the class into six groups. Each group gets a text about one of the most important religions of the world (Buddhism, Hinduism, Islam, Christianity, Judaism, and Animism).

Quelle: Spot on June/2010

Each group prepares a short visualisation, creates a „word search“, „odd one out“, a „gap text“, „categories“, or „crossword“ for their classmates. Then they present the religion to the rest of the class.
(See: Material)

B] After watching the movie

Brainstorming and discussion

First, the students are asked to brainstorm what the film is about.

Then they further reflect in smaller groups of 3-4 students, based on several specific questions (see: material). They sum up their arguments and present their outcome.

Internet research

Students write a short summary – including their personal opinion – of the film (80 – 100 words) by using the platform of www.centropa.org (see material)

D] Exhibition (optional)

Students present a small exhibition in their school to inform all the other students about world religions.

Hand out “words search, odd one out,”

Students can use a media station to watch the film Güler Orgun.

Students’ texts (see above) could be part of the presentation, as well as some recipes of Sephardic or Turkish meals also including photos.

Film „Güler Orgun“

Does the film “Güler Orgun” help to learn more about history? If so, in what ways? Discuss and take notes:

Moving to another country, marrying and changing religions like Güler’s father did – do you or members of your family have similar experiences that you want to share? Discuss and take notes:

Buddhism

Prayer wheels

Buddhism is a major world religion and a philosophy that started in India between the 6th and 4th centuries BC. The goal of Buddhism is to free oneself from worldly suffering and the cycle of rebirth (called "samsara") to reach the heavenly state of nirvana.

Buddhism is based on the teachings of Siddhartha Gautama, who was called Buddha, or The Enlightened One. Siddhartha was a northern Indian prince who gave up his life in the palace for a life of fasting, abstinence and asceticism. He travelled for six years living with the poor and the sick, and found enlightenment – through what came to be known as The Four Noble Truths – by meditating under a bodhi tree.

Buddha then taught enlightenment through meditation and living one's life based on certain moral principles. His teachings were based on some aspects of Hinduism, especially on the idea of karma. Karma comes from a Sanskrit word meaning "action". It means that your good or bad actions determine what happens to you later in your existence – whether you'll be reborn to live through worldly suffering again, or whether you can reach nirvana.

Buddhism spread widely through India in the 3rd century BC, but had almost disappeared from there by the 13th century. It spread through Central Asia and China and Tibet. Buddhism has two main forms, Mahayana and Theravada, each of which has its own set of practices and texts. Tibetan Buddhism developed from Mahayana and is known for the reincarnation of its spiritual leaders, called lamas, the highest of whom is the Dalai Lama.

In the 19th century, Buddhism spread to Europe and North America, where it has become very popular, mainly because of its openness and lack of dogma. Today, Buddhism has around 376 million followers worldwide.

The mandala symbol in Buddhism represents the universe, and people use it as a meditation aid.

Hinduism

Hinduism refers to different beliefs and traditions in India and southern Asia. It is a family of religions with different denominations that have common characteristics. Today, there are 900 million Hindus around the world, with around 90 per cent in India.

Hinduism does not have a founder, leader, single scripture or common doctrine. However, most Hindus believe in Brahman, the soul of the world and universe that flows through everything. The most important deities are Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva, who are responsible for the creation, upkeep and destruction of the world. Other important deities are Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth and good fortune, and Ganesha, the god of beginnings. Lakshmi is represented as a beautiful woman with four arms, and Ganesha has an elephant's head.

Most Hindus follow a group of texts called the Vedas and have a moral code called dharma. Hindus also believe in a cycle of birth, death and rebirth called samsara, where people are reborn as a human, animal or plant.

The law of karma says that all actions have an equal reaction in the future or even in your next life. So bad actions mean bad things will happen to you, while good ones mean the opposite. One of the goals of a Hindu is to escape samsara so that the individual soul (= atman) becomes one with Brahman. This escape is called moksha, and Hindus reach it by achieving peace, knowledge and enlightenment.

Historically, the caste system was very important for social hierarchy in Hindu society. This class system has different levels called jati, which people are born into. Each level expects respect from lower groups. The caste system still exists in India today.

The Sanskrit symbol Om is used in Hinduism and Buddhism as a sacred meditation formula, called a mantra.

Islam

Of the world's three great monotheistic religions, Islam is the youngest. Founded in the 7th century in Mecca (in what is now Saudi Arabia) by the Prophet Muhammad, Islam has about 1.2 billion followers – called Muslims – all over the world today.

The Koran (sometimes spelled Qur'an) holds the sacred scriptures of Islam, which reveal the will of Allah. The text is divided into 114 chapters called suras. The archangel Gabriel gave the words of the Koran to Muhammad over 20 years starting in 610. The word "koran" means "recitation". Also important to Islamic law and thought is the Hadith, which records the traditions and sayings of Muhammad.

Faithful Muslims follow the five pillars of Islam: profession of faith in one God and his Prophet (shahada); prayer (salat, to be performed five times a day); charity (zakat); pilgrimage (hajj, to Mecca); and fasting (sawm, during the month of Ramadan).

The mosque is the place Muslims go to pray. Some mosques have a muezzin – who gives the call to daily prayers, traditionally by calling in all four directions of the compass from a minaret (= the mosque's tower). Before praying, Muslims perform wudhu, the ritual washing of their face, hands and feet. As the head of the mosque, the imam leads the prayers, facing in the direction of Mecca. While believers may pray on their own if they can't go to the mosque, many do go on Fridays, when there is also a sermon given.

Sharia is Islamic law and it covers both private and public life. Anything that is allowed is halal, while anything forbidden is haraam. Especially in non-Islamic countries, the word "halal" is often associated with food that is prepared in a way that allows Muslims to eat it. Pork and alcohol are never allowed.

Judaism is the first and oldest of the three monotheistic world religions that developed in the Middle East. (The other two are Christianity and Islam, see pages 3 and 4). The Jewish calendar dates back 5,770 years, and the roots of the Jewish religion date back around 3,500 years. There are around 15 million Jews worldwide.

BELIEFS: The fundamental belief of Judaism is the covenant between God (or Yahweh) and Moses for the children of Israel. God revealed the laws and commandments of the Torah to Moses. The covenant is an agreement between God and the Jews that they would only worship Him and follow His commandments, and in return they would be His chosen people.

PRACTICE: Different forms of Judaism developed across Europe starting in the Middle Ages. From Orthodox to Conservative and Reform Judaism, there are different interpretations of beliefs and rules. Today Jews generally worship at a synagogue or temple – in a service led by a rabbi. The Sabbath starts Friday at sundown and ends Saturday at sundown. Some Jews keep kosher, following the food laws in the Hebrew Bible (= Old Testament). Jewish boys are introduced into the community when they are 13 in a ceremony called a Bar Mitzvah, Jewish girls when they are 12 (Bat Mitzvah).

PRAYER: Very religious Jews wear phylacteries and prayer shawls when they pray. Phylacteries are leather boxes with Torah texts in them strapped to the arm and head. Men wear yarmulkes in the synagogue.

LANGUAGE: Classical Hebrew is the original language of the Old Testament, and today modern Hebrew is an official language of Israel. Starting in the Middle Ages, Yiddish became a dominant language for many Jewish communities, especially in Europe.

Christianity

Christianity grew out of Judaism. Christians believe that Jesus Christ is the Messiah promised in the Old Testament, who came to bring salvation. He is both human and divine, and is the second person of the Trinity: Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

Christianity is the largest religion in the world today, with more than two billion followers. Most Christians are either Roman Catholic, Protestant or, especially in eastern Europe, members of the Orthodox Church. They practise their religion by worshipping at church, often on Sunday mornings, reading the Bible and praying. Baptism – either being submerged in water or sprinkled with it – identifies a person as being Christian.

At church, people sing hymns, listen to a sermon, and take Communion, also called the Eucharist. Catholics believe that the bread and wine turn into Jesus' body and blood, in a process called transubstantiation.

The Bible is inspired by God and contains many rules for moral living, like the Ten Commandments. But believers know they can't live perfectly, and instead depend on God's grace for salvation. Faith in Jesus' sacrificial death on the cross and resurrection brings eternal life.

Missionaries travel around the world to bring this gospel, or "good news", to as many people as possible.

The Christian hymn "Amazing Grace" is one of the most famous songs in the world. Can you fill in the blanks?

Amazing grace, how sweet the sound,
That _____ a wretch like me!
I once was lost, but now am _____.
Was blind, but now I _____.

ANSWERS: saved / found / see

The Lord's Prayer

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come.
Thy will be done
on earth as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread,
and forgive us our trespasses,
as we forgive those who trespass
against us,
and lead us not into temptation,
but deliver us from evil.
For thine is the kingdom,
and the power, and the glory,
for ever and ever.
Amen.

Animism

A zombie is a person brought back from the dead by a Voodoo sorcerer. The sorcerer can then control the zombie. If zombies really exist, then they are probably living people who have been given powerful drugs, like those from poisonous toads or puffer fish.

poisonous [paʊzənəs]	giftig, Gift-	toad	Kröte
		puffer fish	Kugelfisch

Animism is not itself a religion, but it is a belief system that is part of many religions in the world. Animists believe that souls or spirits exist in animals, plants and other parts of nature like thunder, rivers and mountains. These spirits could be ancestors or powerful divinities. Japanese Shinto and neopaganism are extremely animistic.

Shamanism and totemism are parts of most animistic faiths. The shaman is a religious leader who heals the sick, foresees the future and speaks with spirits. Shamanism is found in Asia, Oceania and in the native religions of North and South America. A totem is a spirit helper that looks after a clan or tribe and often appears in the form of an animal. Australian Aborigines have a totemic religion.

Most native African religions are animist. People pray and offer sacrifices to tribal ancestors or the orisha (divinities). There is usually also a supreme being or creator god. Blood sacrifice, of an animal for example, is the most powerful way to make the divinities happy.

To directly contact the divinities, people go into a trance through dancing, drumming or chanting. The divinity then possesses them. A fetish is a statue through which a divinity can speak. Diviners are people who share in the power of the spirit world and can say what the divinities want by interpreting omens.

In the Haitian religion of Voodoo, priests perform rituals to contact spirits called the loa, many of which are animistic in nature. Voodoo developed from the West African religion of Vodun, which was brought to the Caribbean by slaves in the 18th century. Voodoo includes aspects of Catholicism: Papa Bon Dieux (French for "Good God") or Bonedeve, is the creator of the universe.
